

COOPERATION AMONG COOPERATIVES

Cooperation among cooperatives is one of the seven co-op we were built on. Our founding fathers knew that by working together, electric cooperatives would achieve great things.

We cooperate on lots of things, including legislative issues and training. One of the most visible examples is how we come together during major storms.

When one co-op's system experiences significant damage, other co-ops send aid. Sometimes help comes from a few counties away. Other times it comes from across a few states.

Crews and equipment have arrived here from unaffected parts of Illinois after past tornadoes and ice storms have hit our area. And we send crews to other co-ops when they are needed. It's just the cooperative way.
