

American proud-American made

Labor Day honors the American worker. How about showing your support by buying only American-made products during the week of Labor Day. Head to your local farmers market for locally-grown produce, canned goods and meats. Drop by your hometown cafes, buy from local artisans and visit local shops you haven't been to in a long time. In short, remember what built our country – it's the blood, sweat and tears from the workers that has made America great.
