

Don't forget about mom

A woman dressed in camouflage steps out of a car and walks past a few houses. Hoping no one sees her, she sneaks around the house and enters through the back door. A man and three small children leap from their chairs, crying and embracing her. Mom's home!

When we think of veterans, the picture in our minds is of a male dressed in fatigues. But a growing number of female veterans in our country are also actively serving in a conflict abroad and putting their lives on the line for your freedom.

Some may live in your community. While they're away, give their families a hand. Take them a meal, mow their lawns, offer to babysit their children or set up a playdate for them with your children.

We thank our female veterans for their service and sacrifice.

Happy Veterans Day from your Touchstone Energy Cooperative.
