Cooperative urges safe use of emergency generators

As you know, southern Illinois has seen its share of natural disasters in recent years. Just in the past several years, we have experienced windstorms, floods, tornados and ice storms, all causing widespread damage and power outages. Many of you have had to use emergency generators for the first time in your lives.

Mike Logeman
Director of Engineering

We recommend that for those of you who rely on electricity for farm, business, life-support systems, etc., have a standby source of electricity generation. However, most homes or businesses do not have a permanently installed generator, or even facilities for a standby generator, when an unexpected or extended power outage occurs. Thus, most do not know the proper methods for installing and running the generator.

There are several factors you need to consider when deciding to install a standby generator:

- What size of generator do I need?
- Do I want to run the whole house or just a few appliances?
- What voltage is needed?
- Where do I locate the generator?
- Are there special grounding requirements?

We can provide you assistance with these questions. We also have brochures which explain the proper methods for sizing, installing and operating generators. Give us a call and we will be happy to speak with you or send you some information.

The most important concern we have with members operating emergency generators is the connection the generator has with our electrical system. Improper connection of a generator can cause serious injury or death to our linemen working on the lines to restore power. For a normal home service, generators that are installed at the main service disconnect or in any way use the home's existing wiring must utilize a double-pole double-throw transfer switch.

This switch prevents generator current from flowing onto our lines during an outage. The switch also protects the generator from our lines when power is restored. Larry T. Graham

Our linemen and other employees have noticed numerous incorrect generator hookups during recent major storms. Most incorrect installations have the generator hooked up directly to the home's wiring below the main service breaker with the breaker in the "off" position. They do not have the double-pole double-throw switch installed. This is very dangerous in that if the breaker malfunctions or is accidentally put in the "on" position, then the generator will energize our power lines and may cause serious injury or even death to our linemen.

Pulling the breaker or meter out still does not provide the safety needed. The double-pole double-throw transfer switch must be properly installed before the generator may be used.

A double-pole double-throw transfer switch is not required only when appliances or equipment are plugged directly into the generator. Thus, there is no possible connection between the home's electrical wiring and our power lines.

Before installing or operating any type of standby or emergency generator, you should always read the manufacturer's operating manual and safety requirements. A qualified electrician should perform the installation.

Despite our construction and maintenance programs, unexpected or extended outages are always a possibility, especially in rural areas where miles of line run. But with a little planning, you can protect yourselves and our linemen when that unexpected event occurs.

Please contact us at www.siec.coop or visit www.SafeElectricity.org for any questions or concerns you may have about emergency generators or electrical safety. Chad M. Kaylor

You can help us locate these former SIEC members.

In October 2018, SIEC mailed capital credit checks to the last known address of former members who received electric service for 1988 and prior. Christopher A. Vellera

The following is a partial list of former members who have not cashed their checks, or their checks were returned because of an invalid address. We will publish the remaining names on our list over the next several months. You can also check our website, www.siec.org, for a complete listing of names. If your name is on the list, or you have knowledge of a current address or know someone who may have this information, please call the cooperative office at 1-800-762-1400 or 618-827-3555 and ask for Lana.

Thank you for assisting us in locating these former members.

Area notifications

During the year 2020, SIEC forestry and contract crews will be performing trimming, herbicide application, and clearing of trees and brush in power line rights-of-way in the following substation areas:

- Olive Branch
- Tamms
- Pulaski
- Ullin

Low volume foliar herbicide application will be occurring selectively throughout all the service area during the summer months.

During the year 2020, SIEC engineering technicians and line construction and contract crews will be performing pole inspection, testing and pole changeouts in the following substation areas:

- Lick Creek
- Tamms
- Olive Branch

Your substation area is listed on your monthly billing statement.

Note: Areas of tree trimming or clearing, herbicide application, pole testing and pole changeouts may be added in other areas if the need arises or plans are altered.
