From the Manager

I am always thankful for the dedicated service our staff provides to our members. The cooperative business model is built for the benefit of all the people we serve, not to benefit stockholders and pile up profits. The men and women of Clay Electric Co-operative have bought in to the culture of service and work each day for you. When the call for mutual aid assistance came in after Hurricane Laura hit Louisiana, our linemen and line clearance crews proved their commitment to not only our members, but the members of our sister cooperatives around the country.

I know firsthand that working these massive storms is grueling work. Seventeen-hour days for weeks at a time to try and restore the grid to bring power to thousands of households. 5019-001 The reward is bringing power and safety back to people. There is nothing more satisfying than energizing a line and watching the lights come on for a family that had been living in darkness until the work could get done. Thank a lineman, they are always there for you.

Power On: October is National Co-op Month

Clay Electric Co-operative lives by its mission statement “To provide safe, reliable, and exceptional service to our member owners.” Because we are a co-op, our goal is to enrich the lives of our members and serve the long-term interests of our local community—and this mission has never been more critical than in recent months.

One of the seven principles that guides all co-ops is “concern for community.” This principle is the essential DNA of Clay Electric Co-operative, and it sets us apart from other electric utilities.

October is National Co-op Month, and electric cooperatives across the country are highlighting the many ways we “Power On.” Through storms and pandemics, we recognize the essential role we play in serving our community.

Who would have fathomed in March, that the COVID-19 virus would amount to a test of our community and our nation? The changing circumstances due to the pandemic have created both challenges and opportunities. Over the past several months, we have all been challenged to operate differently, and Clay Electric Co-operative has stepped up to help our members.

As an essential service, and to ensure reliability of your power supply, we modified our operations to safeguard business continuity. Our line crews and other employees began working on staggered schedules to maintain separation. Some their electric bills, we waived late fees and worked with those hardest hit to make special payment arrangements. We exist to benefit our members and have done all we can to keep their lights on.

I tell you about all these efforts not to boast, but to explain how much we care about this community—because we live here too.

Then. Now. Always.
We're proud to power your life.

staff worked remotely. In the office, we limited and modified meetings and gatherings to allow for safe separation. 12292-002 We also adjusted our walk-in office availability and in-person service calls to ensure the health and safety of our employees and our valued members.

For our members impacted by COVID-19 who needed help with

While the challenges caused by COVID-19 have been daunting, we are heartened to see how everyone is pulling together.

In 1944, Clay Electric Co-operative was built by the community to serve the community, and that is what we will continue to do – Power On.

ELECTRICAL SAFETY TIPS FOR HUNTERS

This hunting season, we encourage all members to be aware of electrical equipment and take necessary precautions while hunting. Keep these safety tips in mind as you enjoy the great outdoors.

Take notice of posted warning signs and keep clear of electrical equipment.

Do not shoot at or near power lines or insulators.

Know where power lines and equipment are located on the land where you hunt.

Be especially careful in wooded areas where power lines may not be as visible.

Do not place deer stands on utility poles or climb poles. Energized lines and equipment can conduct electricity to anyone who comes in contact with them, causing shock or electrocution.

Do not place decoys on power lines or other utility equipment. Any non-electrical equipment attached to a pole can pose an obstruction and serious hazards to our line crews.
