

Photo courtesy of the Association of Missouri Electric Cooperatives

We're on our way!

Let's say a dangerous winter storm hit last night. The entire area is glazed with an inch of ice and falling trees have taken out your power lines. Your co-op's employees haven't slept and they may not for days. They've arranged for help from other co-ops, are communicating power restoration updates and are risking their lives to makes yours more comfortable and safe.

So, next time a storm hits, be patient and understand that we're on our way. You, our members, are our most important priority and we're here for you.

